Summer camp at Culinaria Cooking School is a drug and alcohol free environment. However, wine may be used in cooking to enhance flavors, and its use will be under direct supervision and monitoring of Culinaria instructors.

Camper's Code of Conduct

Culinaria Cooking School's summer camp program is designed to provide a structured and fun learning environment for children and teens. For the benefit of everyone, Culinaria Cooking School staff expects each camper to behave appropriately and safely.

Unsafe use of equipment will result in a verbal explanation of why the behavior is unacceptable. If there are repeated incidents of unsafe behavior, parents will be notified, and may be asked to pick a camper up early. Culinaria Cooking School reserves the right to excuse a child from camp if he or she persists in unsafe behavior, with no refund.

Culinaria Cooking School is a teasing and bully-free zone. Mistakes can occur when learning to cook, and the staff at the school relishes these teachable moments to enhance all campers' knowledge and proficiency in the kitchen environment.
